Washington State University

- Washington State University is the public, land-grant university for the state of Washington.
  - WSU has a combined undergraduate enrollment of 21,726

- The Education Abroad Office serves students on all four campuses: Pullman, Tri-Cities, Vancouver and Spokane.
  - WSU sends about 600 students abroad each year on: Faculty-led, Exchanges, Internships, and Study Abroad Programs.
  - WSU Education Abroad Office employs 6 fulltime staff: 2.5 Advisors, 1.5 Faculty-led Coordinators, 1 Director, and 1 office assistant.

CET Academic Programs

- CET Academic Programs is a private study abroad organization based in Washington DC .
- Created in 1982.
- We offer summer and semester programs in China, Czech Republic, Italy, Japan, Spain, Syria, and Vietnam.
- Short term, customized programming in various countries.
- Intensive study abroad programs for students who choose to be challenged, both academically and experientially.
- Immersion in off-the-beaten-path locations and unique subject matter.
- Language courses a must at every sight.

Academic Programs International (API)

- API is an study abroad organization based in Austin, TX.
- Created in 1997.
- We offer semester, summer, and academic year programs in 13 countries, 30 cities across Europe, Latin America, and the Middle East, including Argentina, Chile, Costa Rica, England, France, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Mexico, Poland, Qatar, Spain, and the United Arab Emirates.
- We also coordinate customized and faculty-led programs, and recently opened a division for high school and gap-year programs (Aspire by API).
- Strong academic programs with a focus on extensvie extracurricular activities (cultural events, excursions, volunteer programs) to enhance the study abroad experience.
- Variety of program locations and specialities.
- We envision each student evolving from a tourist, to a resident, to a global citizen.

Using Technology to Engage Students

Online Application & Program Management System

- StudioAbroad Software Overview
- WSU has used the StudioAbroad Software System by TerraDotta since 2007.
  - Program Brochures:
    - Allows students to search an online database by program parameters (type of program, duration, language of study, by academic content areas etc.).
    - View program listings based on search criteria – compare programs.
    - Once student identifies the right program for them, create an online application “Apply Now” button.
  - Linking office created brochures with Directory Listings:
    - StudioAbroad Directory http://directory.studioabroad.com/
    - Program Providers can publish their program information to directory and StudioAbroad clients can link and pull the information into their own systems.

Use the form below to search for programs based on one or more criteria. The list boxes allow you to select multiple values within them by holding the Ctrl/Cmd key while clicking. When values are selected from more than one list box, programs are returned that match the criteria from all the list boxes selected. However, multiple selections from within a list box will return results that fit any of the selections within that list box. If searches are not yielding enough results, try reducing the number of list boxes you select from.

3. Please note that you are required to complete 2 applications - the program provider's application found on their website, and the WSU application found on this website.

4. If you plan to use financial aid to fund your study abroad experience, please visit Financial Aid's study abroad FAQ webpage for more information. Information on Education Abroad scholarships can be found in Bryan 105.

After you attend the Cougs Abroad Advising Session, spend some time exploring different program options. Before making a final decision many students find it helpful to have a one-on-one advising session with an Education Abroad Advisor. To make an appointment with an Education Abroad Advisor call 509-335-6204 or email edabroad@wsu.edu .

WSU places a high importance on serving every student and their specific needs. We welcome applications from members of diverse groups that have traditionally been underrepresented in study abroad programs, including multicultural students, GIESORC students, students with disabilities, and non-traditional students. Please visit the Diversity Issues section of the Education Abroad website for more information and resources.

Program Description:

Intensive Italian Language & Culture Studies in Catania, Sicily

Intensive Italian Language & Culture Studies in Catania, Sicily is CET's newest program in Italy. Students immerse themselves in Italian language and experience a side of Italy most tourists never get to see. The bustling city of Catania becomes the students' classroom--language practica require that students put their new language skills to use in real situations, and a History and Culture of Sicily course takes students on day trips and a traveling seminar. Students select an academic track that is right for them, and their coursework is either mostly or all in Italian. The program is open to students with at least two previous semesters of Italian language study.

The Essential Packing List For Traveling While Studying Abroad

Posted on July 19, 2010 by kimk

The Essential Packing List For Traveling While Studying Abroad

If you are studying abroad (or planning to), chances are that you will be doing some traveling, either within your host country or to nearby countries. As a student that typically means traveling on the cheap, probably getting there via bus (possibly by train in Europe), and staying in hostels once you arrive at your destination. During my first 3-day weekend trip in Argentina last week, I discovered that there were many things I wish I had packed that I hadn't, and others I had packed that I didn't need. Thus my "Essential Packing List" was conceived. This is purely based on my experience and preferences but I hope some of it will help you with your packing choices as well!

A Quick Note: I recommend investing in a decent backpack if you are planning on doing a lot of traveling while you are abroad. This is something I didn't do and now wish I had. If you are going to be lugging your things around for days on end, you will want it to be as pleasant and back-pain-free of an experience as possible so a good backpack will be well-worth the investment.

DO Pack:

- Enough pants/shorts to last you half of the time you will be traveling (i.e. 2 pairs for 4 days), or less
- Enough shirts, underwear and socks to last you the full time you'll be traveling, or less
- Weather-appropriate attire – and if you are going somewhere with unpredictable weather like Iguazu Falls, pack for rain or shine!
- Sports bras (for girls) for the bus/train – you are not going to want to spend hours and hours wearing a tight bra, trust me
- A swimsuit – if the weather will be nice; many hostels have pools
- Travel-size toiletries – and only the essentials! You can also buy toiletries when you arrive but you might not be able to find small bottles
- A towel – most hostels will allow you to use one for a small fee but they are not included like they are in hotels!
- Shower shoes – I use plastic flip-flops; those hostel showers can be pretty nasty

Study abroad advisor reconnects with her Spanish host family after 23 years!

Posted on September 3, 2010 by Jeramy Johnson

By: Susan Pham, Study Abroad Coordinator at Viterbo University (La Crosse, WI)

NOTE: Susan Pham participated on an API site familiarization visit to Spain this past April, where she evaluated API's programs in Cadiz, Granada, Madrid, Salamanca, and Seville. The story below chronicles an amazing chance reunion with the family that hosted her while studying abroad 23 years earlier!

Susan in Salamanca

Return to Salamanca

Twenty-three years ago I studied abroad in Salamanca, Spain. While I can say the experience was a highlight in my college career, I also firmly believe that the experience shaped my life in many different aspects. Decisions and choices I have made over the years I can often trace back to the influence of my time abroad. Sometimes there is an overt connection, such as in my appetite for traveling the world or choosing a career as a study abroad advisor at a university. And sometimes the thread connecting the study abroad experience to the life choice is very subtle and not so obvious, yet it is there. I recognize it when I am tolerant, when I am curious, when I am lonely and when I embrace new friends.

Recently my study abroad experience truly came full circle when I returned for the first time to the city I lived in as a college student more than 20 years ago. Ironically, the occasion that brought me there was study abroad-related. I was invited by a study abroad provider to do a site visit to five cities in Spain, one of which was Salamanca. In the

Since I am writing 2 different blogs about my study abroad experience (and trying not to repeat posts) you'll find that a lot of what I post on this blog is related to program-sponsored events and my thoughts and reactions to the experiences I'm having while studying abroad, while my personal/school blog tends to deal more with non-program sponsored events and other miscellaneous posts. I just wanted to mention that briefly so you don't think that the only interesting things I am doing are the program-sponsored activites and trips that I keep writing about. Don't get me wrong, they are a blast, but they are only one piece of a much larger adventure that I am having in Argentina. :)

Our latest adventure was a folk-dancing class that took place in the API office last week on what happened to be both our resident director and one of the girls in our program's Birthday! After some homemade cake and mate, we began . . .

Today we thought we would spice things up by sharing some wonderful photos taken from the streets of Buenos Aires, Argentina. They have been provided by Vija Mendelson, who is the program manager for Academic Programs International in Argentina, and in her free time she enjoys capturing life's little moments on film.

You can see more of Vija's work on her website at Word on the Street Photography, and learn more about studying abroad in Argentina by contacting API.

Enjoy the photos and feel free to share your thoughts and feelings about them in the comments below!

Using Technology to Engage Students

Program Promotion and Recruitment of Students

- Social Networking for Marketing/Recruiting
  - Meeting the new demand: I want it now and I want it my way (not just for BK but still a fast-food mentality)
    - Information requests
    - Embedded hotlinks

  - Electronic Newsletters (be it via social networking sites or email)
    - Keeping home institutions informed
    - Touching base with students about the fun stuff
    - Newsletters can be tailored to various audiences
    - Great for linking to additional content (whether it be website, blog, Facebook, other resources).
  - Social networking has necessitated the revival of the personal touch when using “old fashioned” email.

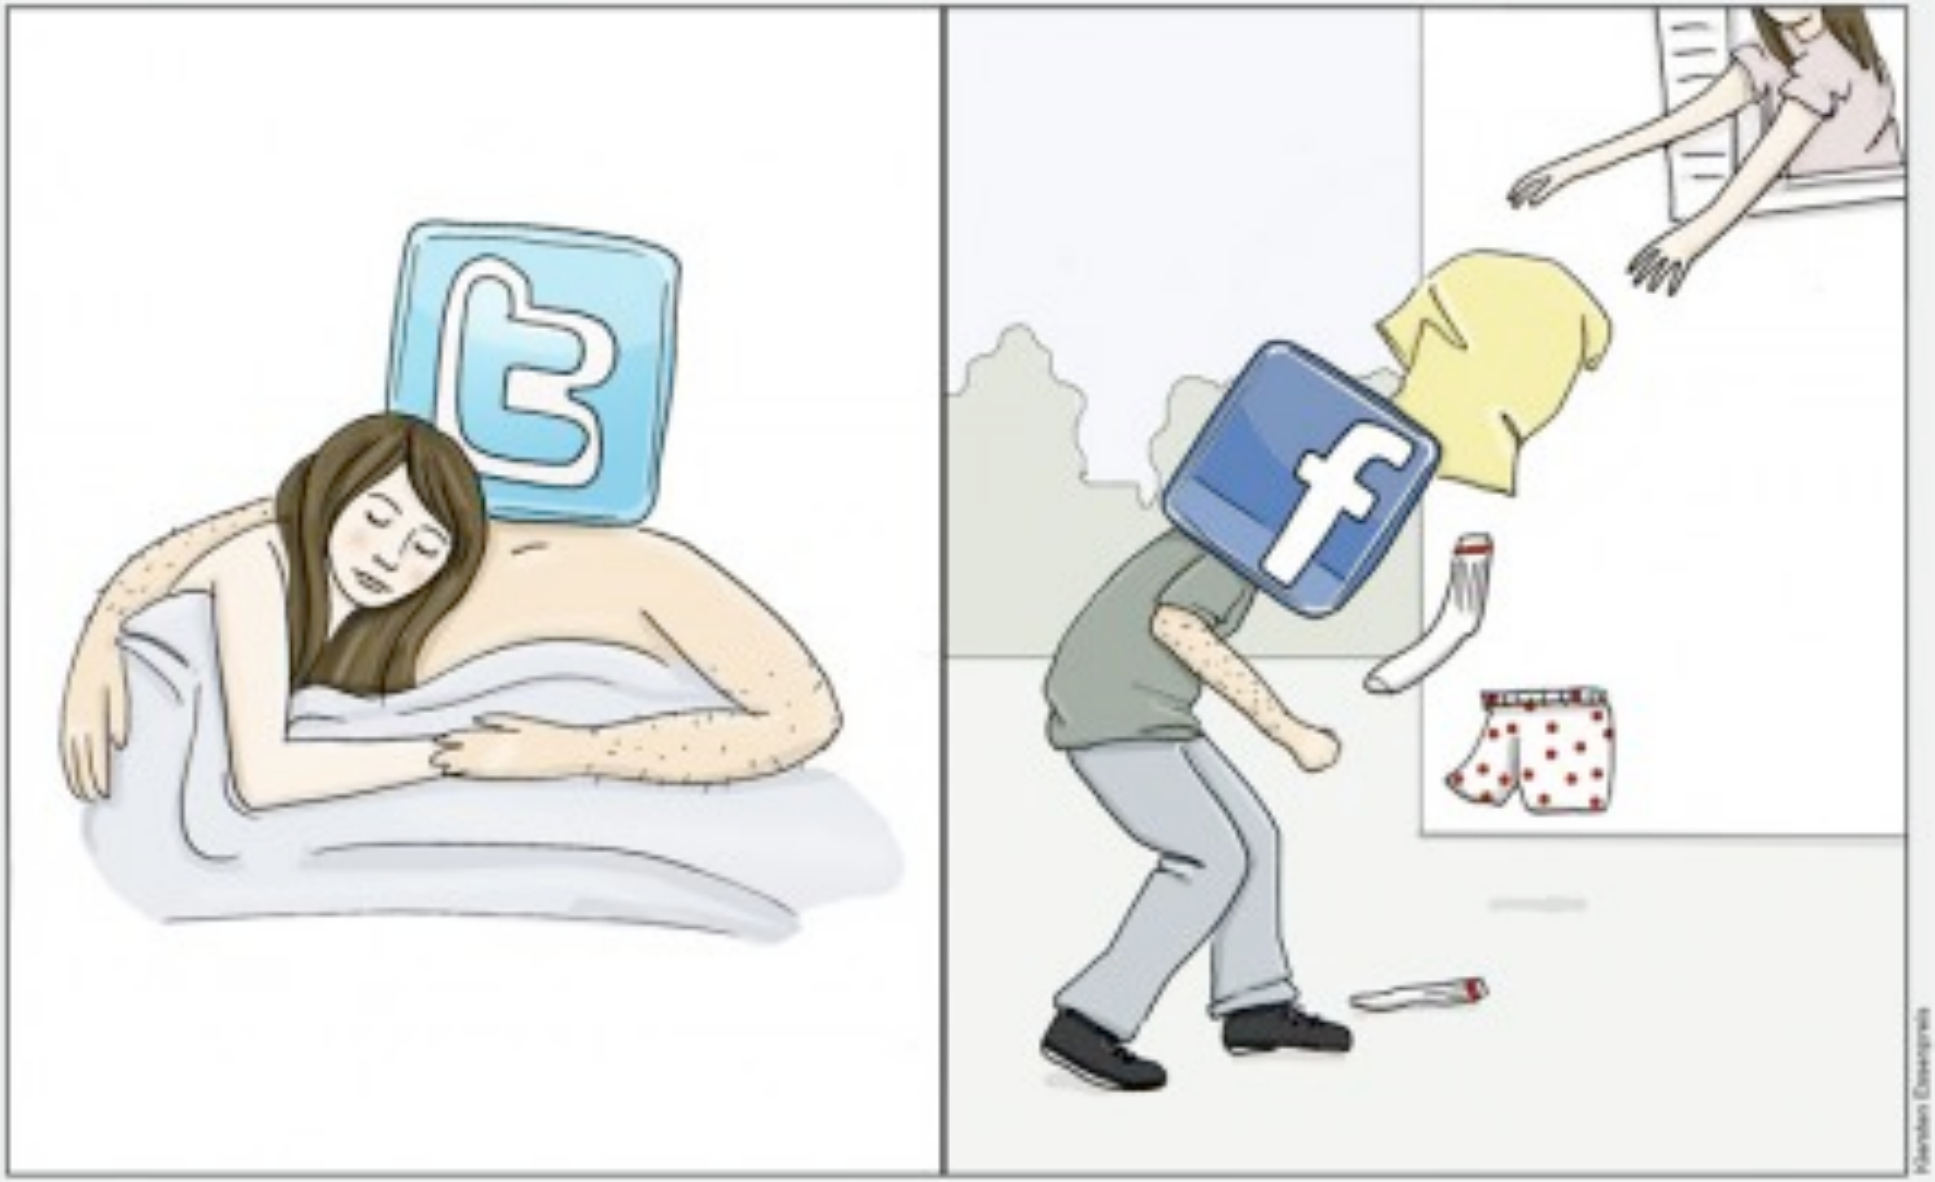
Using Technology to Engage Students

Program Promotion and Recruitment of Students

- Social Networking for Marketing/Recruiting
    - Twitter
        - API uses Twitter to communicate program information to study abroad offices, engage in pre-advising dialogue with prospective students, and follow developments in the education abroad field specifically, and international news in general.
        - Can use monitoring software such as Tweetdeck, Hootsuite, or others to manage/coordinate multiple presences (Twitter/Facebook/LinkedIn) and create custom searches/lists to monitor subjects of interest (your organization, office, the education abroad field, etc).
        - Pay attention to who others in your field follow and follow them too – you never know what information you'll learn!



Twitter makes me like people I've never met and Facebook makes me hate people I know in real life.

@shaylamaddox

mlsnider @APIstudyabroad How long does it usually take from the time API receives an application until the time I will hear their decision?

12:13 PM Sep 27th from web

@mlsnider Hi Peggy! It typically takes up to a week; which program dud you apply to? I can ask the program manager for you :)

1:45 PM Sep 27th from TweetDeck in reply to mlsnider

mlsnider @APIstudyabroad I applied to Granada Spring 2010...they received all my hard copies on Friday after I submitted my online about 2 wks ago.

1:53 PM Sep 27th from web

@mlsnider In that case I would guess by the end of the week. Call our 800 number and ask for Paige or Erin for more details :)

2:30 PM Sep 27th from web in reply to mlsnider mlsnider @APIstudyabroad Thank you!

Online New Media School

- MatadorU (a division of Matador Network – the web's largest travel blog) to offer travel writing/travel photography courses to our students.
  - This program is a way for students to build crucial communication skills while learning about new media skills from travel industry experts and peers.
  - 12 week online program with assignments (can be done at any time but optimal to do while abroad).
  - Show those back home their experience and improved skills…
  - Amazing networking opportunities (internships and jobs) in the travel writing/ photography fields…
  - Scholarships available; may petition home university for credit.
  - Automatic entry into Glimpse Correspondent's Program
  - Work may be featured on Matador Network!

- Much has been written on this topic of helping students utilize their study abroad experience in their professional development and marketability (David Comp, Chronicle of Higher Education, Joshua Irons guest post).

Study Abroad's New Focus Is Job Skills

Colleges strive to translate students' experience for employers

Brandi Simons for The Chronicle

Cheryl Matherly, associate dean for global education at the U. of Tulsa, has built bridges between study abroad and career services with programs like a summer research trip to Japan.

By Karin Fischer

Cheryl Matherly was going through résumés with a hiring manager for a major consulting firm when she had her "aha" moment.

Like many employers, the campus recruiter put a premium on the ability of potential hires to succeed in unfamiliar situations with co-workers from different backgrounds and cultures. Ms. Matherly, then assistant dean of students for career and international education at Rice University, thought she had the perfect candidate, a history major who had won a scholarship to conduct three months of solo research in Spain. The value of his having navigated working alone in a foreign country, she thought, was obvious.

But the recruiter pushed the résumé aside, dismissing the student's experience as a "backpacking trip through Europe," Ms. Matherly recalls. "That's what it boiled down to for him."

"It spoke volumes to me about how employers commonly view an overseas-study experience," she says.

The discrepancy isn't unusual. Even in an increasingly global economy, few companies set out to

How can you market your study abroad experience?

Posted on August 5, 2010 by Jeramy Johnson

API Guest Blogger: Joshua Irons of StudyAbroad.com

Social Media Can Make You More Marketable (if you are careful)

Jessica Pena, a 20-year-old Japanese Studies major from SUNY Postdam in New York studying at Kansai Gaidai in Osaka, Japan, is wise beyond her years. While inadvertent on her part, Jessica has effectively created her own personal brand using the Internet as a platform for her future. To record her experiences while studying abroad, Jessica chose to vlog (video blog) "as a way to share my experiences with others who have the same goals and aspirations."

Using Technology to Engage Students

Looking to the Future

- Technology of today for future use by education abroad:
  - Geolocation
    - Using GPS-enabled devices for interactive experiences and on-site orientations (scavenger hunts, geocaching, dropped tips, items of interest, etc)
    - Depends on network and service availability, hardware issues (Facebook places just now in Europe; Foursquare/Gowalla not as saturated there)… are students bringing their own smartphones or program provided (data charges?)
  - Foursquare has partnered with History Channel, New York State, Many U.S. universities, while Gowalla has partnered with news organizations and National Geographic
    - Could access your university's Foursquare to drop hints about your office "visit us to learn about study abroad" or "advising sessions daily.."
    - Could use such a service to design your own "trips" or "itineraries" that students could follow (faculty-led programs?)…

Green Light District by EGC

Stockholm was the first capital city in the world to introduce LEDs in all its traffic lights. In contrast to normal light bulbs, which had to be changed at least twice a year, the LEDs last for 5-7 years.

Let's go fishing by EGC

One of the fantastic things about Stockholm is that its waters are so clean that you can fish in the heart of the city. The right to fish freely in Stockholm was granted by Queen Kristina back in the 17th century.

Recycle of life by EGC

At the City Museum, objects are collected and then reused in exhibitions. Stockholm City Museum is also conducting its own range of city tours, including "Stockholm's path to the Green Capital".

Waterworld by EGC

Ferries are an excellent alternative to road transport. Stockholm offers ferries

FOURSQUARE FOR UNIVERSITIES

Encourage students to explore their campus!

Foursquare for universities helps students, alumni, and staff connect with each other, find new and interesting things to do, and earn rewards for exploring their campus and nearby areas. We combine a communication platform and a campus guidebook to create a fun experience for our users; students earn points, win 'Mayorships' and unlock badges for checking in to places and trying out new activities on campus.

Universities such as Syracuse, Harvard, Stanford, and Texas A&M have already launched a foursquare presence, and engaged tens of thousands of their students.

Here are a few of the ways a university can benefit from using foursquare on campus:

- Encourage students to explore their campus and participate in campus events and student-run activities.
- Communicate campus traditions and historical facts about the university as students experience campus life.
- Direct students to campus facilities, such as computer stores, dining halls, and book stores by providing targeted specials and promotions.
- Facilitate social connections by providing a tool to help students easily find friends and foster deeper school pride.

As students use foursquare to explore their campus, they can share their discoveries - via check-ins and 'Tips', on Twitter and Facebook.

There are three main ways universities can integrate foursquare into their campus life:

1. Build an online following. Create a university page on foursquare that allows your students to "follow" your university. Broadcast recommendations and activities for your followers to try out.

Case Studies

To get a better idea of how your university can work with foursquare, take a look at some of the ways other campuses have leveraged our platform:

- Harvard
- Stanford
- Syracuse

How can I use foursquare for my college or university?

We are currently developing a self-service platform for branded University pages. In the meantime, we encourage you to begin utilizing the foursquare platform on campus, by following the guidelines below.

1. Register your University on foursquare by visiting foursquare.com and clicking on the green Join Now button. Fill in the full name of your University under "First Name" and leave the last name blank.

(already have campus-wide account on foursquare? Great! Proceed to step 2)

2. Link your foursquare account to your Twitter handle. Your foursquare username will now be the same as your Twitter handle. This is how we ensure that your University's foursquare presence is managed by a representative of the school itself!

3. Add 'Tips' (the most important part!) which act as an information portal for students on campus, as they surface relevant content based on where students check in. Please click here for more information on adding Tips.

4. Claim your venues so you can start offering Specials for the students!

5. Promote your foursquare presence across social media platforms to reach prospective, incoming, and existing students and campus visitors!

Using Technology to Engage Students

Looking to the Future

- Technology of today for future use by education abroad:
  - iPhone, iPad, and other smart device apps already in use by U.S. and international universities for maps, tips, video – engaging prospective students and serving as utility for current students.
  - Many existing apps good for language review, travel tips, and can be used offline (see World Nomads example).
  - Host universities starting to develop apps as well… recommend students consult these to better familiarize themselves with their new campus and resources…
  - Check with public affairs/media relations on campus to see if your school already has an app or if one is in development, and see how you can partner with them…
    - Add videos from your office YouTube
    - Make sure your office is on the campus map, and drop 'hints' or 'tips'
  - iTunesU – your institution may have a presence here as well – (how) can you get involved at little/no expense?

Using Technology to Engage Students

What's working, what's not?

Using Technology to Engage Students

What's working, what's not?

- How to track/quantify success of these tools
  - Quality/quantity – more than just number of fans/followers/ subscribers
  - How engaged are your students/audience?
  - Monitor effectiveness of tools in post-program evaluations, anecdotal conversations, social mentions/graphs
- Open Discussion
