ENGAGING INTERNATIONAL ALUMNI AS STRATEGIC PARTNERS

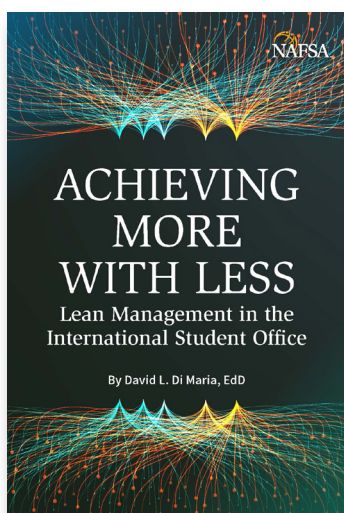

SANDRA RINCÓN AND GRETCHEN DOBSON
FOREWORD BY JEFFREY M. RIEDINGER

New! Every international educator knows the value international students bring to campus, but few institutions have tapped their international alumni to their full potential. In this book, experts on international alumni relations describe how higher education institutions can develop international alumni networks—and keep these alumni connected to their alma mater by nurturing two-way relationships. Chapters and case studies from institutions and organizations around the world cover how international alumni can contribute to recruitment, philanthropic efforts, professional development, community engagement initiatives, and more.

REVIEWS

"International alumni are the heart and soul of many universities. This volume will inspire those who believe in a sense of belonging and the power of experience."—Joanna Regulska, vice provost and dean of global affairs, University of California-Davis

"Recasting relationship-building to more fully engage international alumni as true institutional partners is a future-forward strategy all institutions should employ. ACHIEVING MORE WITH LESS: LEAN MANAGEMENT IN THE INTERNATIONAL STUDENT OFFICE

DAVID L. DI MARIA

New! What can international educators learn from the business, management, and manufacturing sectors? Surprisingly, a lot! In this groundbreaking publication, David Di Maria shows how tried-and-true management methods and tools from these industries can improve processes in international offices. Core concepts—such as applying systems thinking to organizational dynamics and streamlining administrative processes—are made accessible to both new and experienced international office managers and other staff members through practical example scenarios regularly encountered in ISSS and IEM contexts. In a time when most international student and scholar offices must show greater returns on investment with fewer resources to allocate, this publication provides the tools and knowledge educators need to make the most of the assets at their disposal.

REVIEWS

"Di Maria's emphasis on continuous improvement, alternative ways of thinking, and change agency leads to important observations about empowering leadership and will inspire international educators to reflect on their practices."—Roger N. Brindley, vice provost for global programs, the Pennsylvania State University

"You won't need an MBA to use the systems-based logic and tools Di Maria provides to deliver strategic victories and help your office achieve more with less!"—Tina Rousselot de Saint Cérant, director of international student and scholar services, Georgia Institute of Technology

SOCIAL JUSTICE AND INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION: RESEARCH, PRACTICE, AND PERSPECTIVES

EDITED BY LANITRA M. BERGER

Social Justice and International Education: Research, Practice, and Perspectives brings together a group of educators, scholars, and practitioners in the field of international education who are doing important and innovative work promoting social justice, confronting inequality, and fostering social responsibility in a global context. The book does not operate on a singular definition of social justice; rather, the authors describe their own working definition and how it has guided their international education work. Divided into three parts, this best-selling book explores social justice research, social justice in practice, and different perspectives from practitioners across the field.

REVIEWS

"Educators and practitioners working in every domain of international education and exchange will find practical applications and strategies they can integrate into their regular practice, whether it is supporting international students as they navigate the complex racial climate of the United States or embedding pedagogical strategies into study abroad programs that cultivate social justice-oriented students. This book should be required reading for early career and established educators and practitioners alike."—Lily López-McGee, director, Thomas R. Pickering Foreign Affairs Program, Howard University

"I cannot think of a more apt time for such a volume to become available. The authors do much to demystify the notion of social justice, which can feel altruistic and unattainable, by outlining concrete and meaningful ways by which international educators can rethink and retool their daily practices."—Nick Gozik, director, Office of International Programs and McGillycuddy-Logue Center for Undergraduate Global Studies, Boston College
